DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY – BRIDGE COURSE

Emerging Trends in Historiography

To succeed in history, students must think about history in new and challenging ways. Real history is more rigorous and challenging than simply 'knowing what happened' or memorising and reciting facts from the past. History students must begin to think and work like historians. They should learn to search for information and evidence, read extensively and examine relevant historical sources, like documents, images and artefacts.

The first step towards thinking like a historian is learning some important historical concepts. Like most other disciplines, history has its own concepts, skills, terminology and approaches to thinking. Students will frequently encounter terms like change and continuity, cause and effect, sources and evidence. It is important for students to learn these terms and, once confident, to incorporate them into their own thinking and writing.

Change is perhaps the most important of all historical concepts. Exploring, explaining and evaluating change is a universal focus for people who study or work in history. When investigating the past, most historians focus not on a specific moment in time but on how society changed and evolved over a longer period.

Human societies are never static. All societies are undergoing some form of change, however minor or unnoticeable it might be. One of the aims of a historian is to identify, describe and explain this process of change. They seek to find out the conditions and factors that caused change. They try to identify how this change affected the society in question.

The speed of change is also significant. Most historical change is slow, gradual or evolutionary; it causes little disruption to society and its individual members. But some historical change – like the upheaval caused by a war, a revolution, an economic depression or political radicalism – can be abrupt, fast moving and tumultuous.

Continuity is the opposite of change. It is where things stay more or less the same. Historians are interested in change but they are mindful that not everything changes. Even during a period of great upheaval, some institutions, traditions, ideas and human behaviours will remain constant

Other important historical concepts are cause and effect. Every significant event, development or change is triggered by at least one cause. To understand an event, the first task of the historian is to identify and study the factors that caused it.Every significant historical action or event also has effects or consequences. Historians study the aftermath of these actions and events, to identify and evaluate the impact they had on society. Understanding the effects of an event or change allows us to gauge its significance or importance.

More importantly, history students should pose difficult questions and think critically. They should be prepared to question the validity of evidence, challenge existing knowledge and evaluate the arguments of others.

Aims and Objectives

Our intention of preparing this bridge course is to familiarise the students about the emerging trends in history, new concepts and ideas.

Along with the importance given to the traditional history, we focus the emerging trends and new theories illustrated by the social scientist

Syllabus

The Department shall frame the syllabus of the Course after identifying the gap areas, according to UG syllabus and target group.

NEPM 2021 Report

National Enrichment Programme in Mathematics

6 September 2021 to 16 September 2021

National Enrichment Programme is envisioned to encourage and motivate the upcoming Math community especially the undergraduates to move on further into the career of Mathematics. The programme has its inception since 2020, and since then, the genuine feedbacks from the participants has influenced the organizers to conduct the programme every year. Due to the pandemic situation, NEPM 2021 was conducted as a ten-day workshop, in the online mode from 6 September 2021 to 16 September 2021, using various ICT facilities including video conferencing via Google Meet, recorded session in YouTube, interaction with participants via WhatsApp, daily tests and feedbacks through Google forms and a final test was also arranged to pass the eligibility for certification. Resource persons included young established researchers from esteemed institutes in India and abroad and well-known and qualified teaching fraternity from different universities and colleges of the State. The resource persons were Dr Aparna Lakshmanan, Mr Albert Antony T, Ms Smitha Davis, Dr Arusha C, Dr Meenu Mariya Jose, Ms Ramya Nair, Dr Neeraj Dhanwani, Ms Sunitha M, Ms Amala Mary George and Dr Nidhin T J. The topics included great flavours of Mathematics and definitely the participants were keen on understanding the new notions which are a little higher than their undergraduate learning. There were about 92 registered participants from all over the country, among whom 83 received certification undergoing the evaluation process.

Students Online tutorials for Chemistry practical

Organized by the Department of chemistry

28th October 2021

Online tutorial is a project developed by the Department of Chemistry to provide practical Chemistry classes which were lost due to Covid 19 pandemic. Chemistry students volunteered to pass their knowledge in Chemistry to others in the safest possible way. This project enabled the students to adapt recent trends in technology as a medium to share their knowledge. With the need of moving to online classes due to spread of corona virus there has been a sudden need to prepare the students and educators for a rapid change in working environment. We prepared a number of videos as a resource for teaching and presenting chemistry practical for plus two students and B Sc. Chemistry Complementary course. In these videos, we share the experience of doing the experiment in laboratory and the video is seasoned with the theory and method of the experiments. These videos will encourage the students to adapt to their classroom when the offline classes begin.

Through these ventures department gave opportunities for the Chemistry students to acquire awareness of trends in technology and to learn new skills which are essential in advancing their career. This deed diversifies their job options and helps the students to develop new techniques to keep up with the fast changing world. It helps the students to get new and knowledge based perspectives on the world around them. This online tutorial preparation enables the students to gain new experiences, trains the brain to handle a wide range of challenges and keeps their neural pathways active. The willingness to learn such new skills increases the confidence level of a student which helps them to grow as a person and a professional.

SOFT SKILL PROGRAMME

“OPPORTUNITIES ABROAD”

DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY

SACRED HEART COLLEGE, CHALAKUDY

Soft skill programme report 2021–22

The department of Chemistry organized soft skill programmes for the students of the department. Our department has alumnae, qualified IELTS and has got opportunities abroad for their higher studies. We utilize the skills and expertise of those alumnae for the present batch of students present in the department. There are several student aspirants looking for higher education opportunities abroad. The session was handled by Ms. Anju T B as she had been selected for Masters in Chemistry at University of Siegen, Germany. The interactive session was organized on 26/02/2022 at 1:30 pm in the final B Sc. Chemistry Class room. The session was very effective for our students as they are lacking skills of searching and grabbing opportunities. From this session, many of the students became aware about the possibilities of study abroad and they became more confident to follow their dreams. In this session, Ms. Anju described the details of preparation and qualifying IELTS. She emphasized the need to become stronger in English language if someone is preparing to go abroad. The possibilities of getting scholarships for pursuing higher education were also discussed with the students. Ms. Anju answered questions from the students' side. She clearly reminded the students to apply only through proper channel and the financial commitments should also been considered.

Dr. Santhosh Paul, Head of the department, Department of Chemistry, Sacred Heart College, Chalakudy welcomed the gathering and introduced the programme to the audience. Dr. Laina A L, Assistant Professor, Department of Chemistry, delivered felicitation speech. The student representative Ms. Merin Elizabeth proposed vote of thanks.

Soft Skills Training Program

24 November 2021

Venue: III DC Zoology Classroom

No. of Participants: 27

Report -

Hard Skills refer to the knowledge and ability that an individual needs in order to do their job. Hard skills may mean the ability to conduct research in the field, fundraise, design and implement projects, code using any programming language, argue in a courtroom etc. Soft Skills, on the other hand, are the interpersonal skills that people need in order to do well in their jobs. This can mean having the ability to work well in teams, manage time, and multitask. Working in a team, communicating with each other, critical thinking, networking with stakeholders or partners, working under pressure, willingness to learn and unlearn are some of the soft skills

Soft skills are your people or relationship skills—how well you get along with others and your ability to communicate and collaborate—as well as the personal characteristics you bring to the job, such as optimism, a can-do attitude and the motivation to work hard. These skills are not always easy to point out, but their absence can cause serious problems and negatively affect the whole work atmosphere.

A soft skill training program was organised by the department of Zoology for the first year students. Ms. Bincy Baby, Assistant Professor of the department of Zoology handled the training sessions. She started the day with ice breaking sessions and moved on to other topics to help develop the soft skills of the students.

The participants were asked to complete a Self – awareness happiness assessment. Participants were told about the importance of communication and the skills that are needed for proper communication. Being a team player is another important skill which requires negotiation, cooperation and managing conflicts with other people to achieve a common goal. Tasks that require such skills were given to the participants.

Outcome – The event helped develop soft skills of the students.

Class on Medical Coding

Date: 6 January 2022

Venue: II DC Physics Classroom

No. of Participants: 36

Report -

Medical coding is similar to translation. Coders take medical reports from doctors, which may include a patient's condition, the doctor's diagnosis, a prescription, and whatever procedures the doctor or healthcare provider performed on the patient, and turn that into a set of codes, which make up a crucial part of the medical claim.

Medical coding is the transformation of healthcare diagnosis, procedures, medical services, and equipment into universal medical alphanumeric codes. The diagnoses and procedure codes are taken from medical record documentation, such as transcription of physician's notes, laboratory and radiologic results, etc. Medical coding professionals help ensure the codes are applied correctly during the medical billing process, which includes abstracting the information from documentation, assigning the appropriate codes, and creating a claim to be paid by insurance carriers.

Medical coding happens every time you see a healthcare provider. The healthcare provider reviews your complaint and medical history, makes an expert assessment of what's wrong and how to treat you, and documents your visit. That documentation is not only the patient's ongoing record, it's how the healthcare provider gets paid.

Students of the department of Physics, Chemistry and Zoology attended a class on Medical coding and its career prospects. Ms. Neethu Varghese, Managing Director, Anton's Medicode, Angamaly gave the students a talk on the different aspects of Medical Coding. She enlightened the students on what is medical coding, what are the different ways of becoming a certified medical coder, the career aspects of medical coding and where such medical coders are in demand in the world healthcare organizations. 36 students and 2 teachers also participated in the event. The students belonging to the final degree and post graduate batches were keenly interested in this program as most of them were anxious on what should be done next in their academic career. Medical coding as a 3 month course with assurance of a job at the end of it was an added bonus for the students.

Outcome - Medical coding uses computer software to enter information about the patients by the health providers. This activity helped to develop the IT skills of the students who participated in the program.
