SELF-EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES IN FISHERIES

Organised by: Department of Zoology

Report -

Dr. Ignatius C.A., Retd. Head, Associate Professor, Department of Aquaculture, Asmabi College and present Project Consultant, GIFT Fisheries and Technologies (under AC-ABC, Team of Govt. of India), Thaloor delivered a talk on "Self-employment opportunities in fisheries" on 11th December 2019.

Fishery is the occupation or industry of catching, processing or selling fish or shellfish. Aquaculture is the cultivation of aquatic animals and plants, especially, fish, shellfish and seaweed, in natural or controlled marine or freshwater environments. Indian fisheries sector is an important sector not only providing nutritional and food security, but also creating opportunities for entrepreneurship, income generation, self-employment, trade and commerce and fish related activities in India.

Globally, in terms of employment, 90 percent of all fishers and fish workers are small-scale, and nearly all of them live in developing countries. Women constitute nearly half of those employed in fisheries globally. They make vital contributions to fish value chains and play critical roles in ensuring food security. Their roles in fisheries are significantly under recognized and undervalued by both States and fishing communities.

He gave the students ideas on how to rear fish at home. He spoke about the species of fish that are easy to culture, those that yield more money on selling. He also gave a list of places where fish seed and fry are available both from government and private institutions.

The students were enthusiastic after hearing about the various opportunities in fisheries.
