

HUMAN RIGHTS

ORGANISED BY NSS ON DECEMBER 10

Report of the article:

Human rights are inherent to all the human beings, regardless of race, sex, nationality, ethnicity, language, religion, or any other status. In connection with the human rights day on 10th December, the teachers and the students took a pledge on the protection of the human rights. N.S.S members also organised an elocution competition at the college with regard to this. 17 students took part in this competition organised by the NSS Volunteers. The theme for the year was “stand up for someone's rights today”, which emphasises on peace and harmony with respect for each other's rights. The topic given for the elocution was “Human dignity and human rights”. The NSS leader told us about the human rights which reminds us about the powers we have, to stop the injustices and abuses by any authority or individual. She also reminded us not to be silent when anyone disrespects us and to speak our mind without any fear. The NSS coordinator Dr. Tessy Simon to report any issue and told students they will support them throughout.
